DocIndex

01 What it does

DocIndex turns a pile of scans and emailed PDFs into tidy, searchable folders, on your own PC.

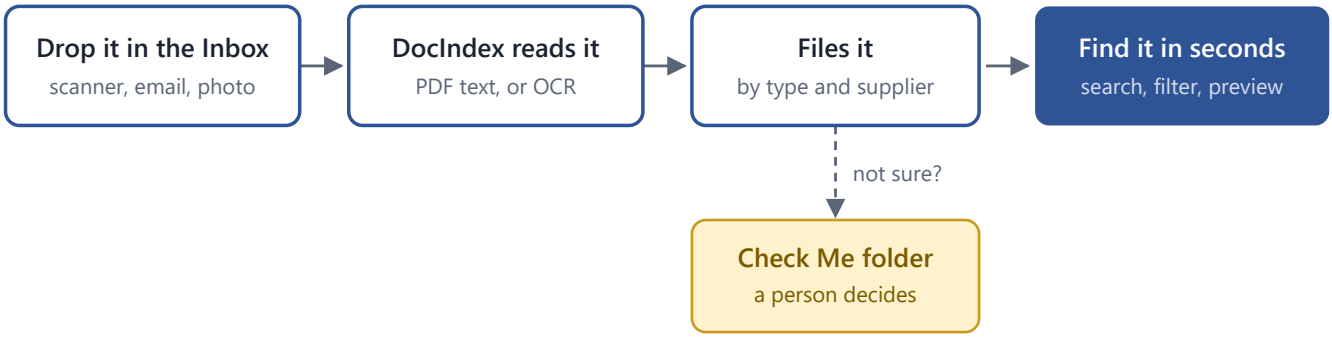

Today

- Scans pile up in one folder called "Scan" or on the desktop.
- Someone renames and sorts them by hand, when there is time.
- Finding last March's invoice from one supplier means opening file after file.
- "How much was that invoice?" takes ten minutes.

With DocIndex

- Scan or save into the Inbox folder. That is the only step.
- Within seconds the file is in Purchase Invoices › Supplier name.
- Type an amount, a supplier or an invoice number and see the document straight away.
- Pick a supplier and a date range to list every invoice in that period.

How it works

DocIndex never guesses. When it cannot show why a document belongs somewhere, for example a blurry photo or a handwritten bill, it puts it in Check Me and you move it with one click.

Invoices from your suppliers go to Purchase Invoices, one folder per supplier, created the first time that supplier appears. Your own invoices go to Sales Invoices. Statements, credit notes, delivery orders and quotations each get their own folder.

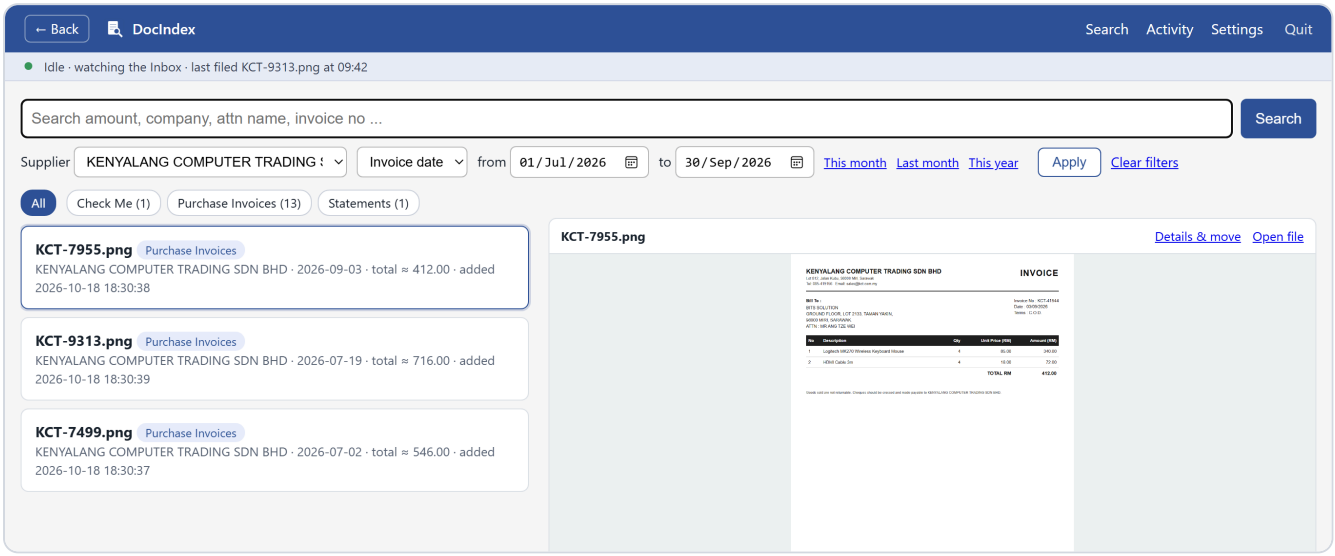

Your Output folder, sorted

- Purchase Invoices
  - BORNEO OFFICE SUPPLIES 3
  - DELTA NETWORK DISTRIB... 3
  - KENYALANG COMPUTER... 3

    - KCT-9313.png
  - MIRI PRINT & COPY CENTRE 2
  - SINAR JAYA HARDWARE 2
- Sales Invoices
- Statements 1
- Check Me 1

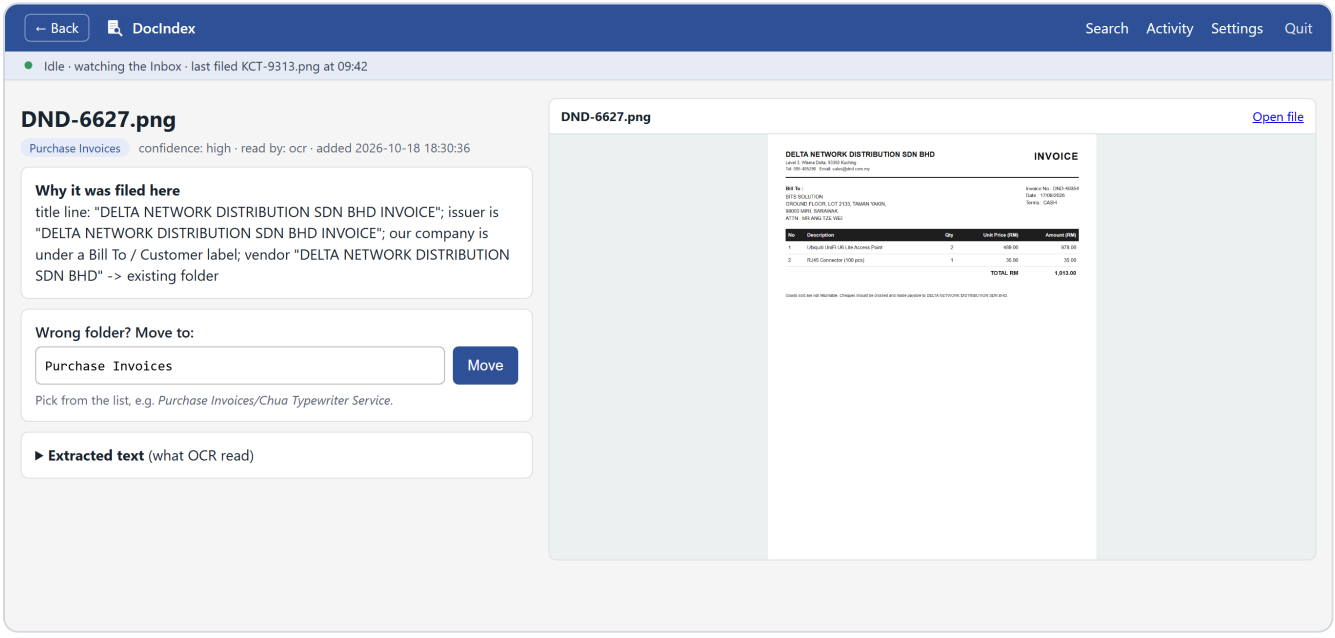

Tested on real paperwork. In our own test with 205 real supplier invoices, about 4 in 5 were filed on their own in 7 minutes, and the rest were set aside in Check Me. None were put in the wrong folder.

02 Find anything

One window: results on the left, the document itself on the right, like the preview pane in Windows File Explorer.

Supplier and date filters. Here: every invoice from one supplier between July and September. Add a word such as epson to see only the invoices that mention it. Use the arrow keys to flip through the previews.

Every decision explained. Each document shows why it was filed where it is. If it is in the wrong place, pick the right folder and click Move.

Screens show sample invoices from made-up suppliers.

03 Main features

Reads scans and PDFs
Emailed PDFs are read directly; scans and phone photos (JPG, PNG, TIF) go through OCR.

Sorts by document type
Invoices, statements, credit and debit notes, purchase and sales orders, quotations, delivery orders, receipts.

One folder per supplier
New supplier, new folder, made automatically. Small OCR spelling differences still land in the same folder.

Search like Google
By amount (6580 or 6,580.00), supplier, invoice number, person's name or any word on the page.

Supplier and date filters
Invoice date or date filed; This month, Last month and This year in one click.

Preview pane
See the document while you go through the results, without opening files one by one.

Check Me, not guesswork
Unclear documents wait for a person. Purchase and sales invoices are told apart by whose letterhead is on top.

Live progress
"Filing 3 of 12, 25%" while it works, and an activity log of every file and the reason.

04 Safe by design

Runs on your own PC
No cloud and no internet needed. Your invoices never leave the office.

Never deletes or changes a file
It only moves files from the Inbox into folders, exactly as they were.

Plain Windows folders
The sorted files are normal folders you can open, copy and back up, with or without DocIndex.

Hints stay hints
Dates and totals read by OCR help you search; amounts for your accounts always come from the original.

05 What you need

Coming next: item lines from invoices (what you bought, how many, at what price) with stock reports per supplier and Excel export, then a link to AutoCount.
